People have always wanted to discover new things and new worlds. We have built spaceships to go to other planets and are planning to visit other galaxies one day. Meanwhile, we know very little about our own planet. The oceans, which cover 70 percent of the planet, are an unknown world to us. The Pacific Ocean is the largest one. The lowest point on the Earth is also there. It is called Challenger Deep and it was discovered in 1875. The Pacific Ocean stretches from the Arctic Ocean to the coast of Antarctica, but most of its water is in the warm tropics, which makes it warm. A lot of fish and animals live in the Pacific Ocean. The place is still waiting for researchers to discover its secrets for us.

Venus is one of the hottest planets in the Solar system. The temperature on its surface is 482 degrees. This unfriendly place looks much the same as the Earth 4 billion years ago. Both planets were formed from the same gas cloud, but Venus lost most of its water and atmosphere. This happened because the planet turns very slowly. As a result, now it has no magnetic field to protect it from the Sun's winds. The planet has turned into a lifeless desert. Most space modules that were sent to Venus could not work on the planet more than two hours. The acidic clouds and high pressure quickly made them absolutely useless.

The Arctic Ocean is the smallest ocean of the world. It covers the northern polar region of the Earth. The Arctic region is a very cold place. The lowest recorded temperature there is minus 68 degrees. In spite of the cold, a lot of animals live on the Arctic ice. The polar bear is one of them. Now, due to global warming, the polar bear is in a serious trouble. The thing is that polar bears hunt seals and they need ice to do this. The bears wait for seals on the ice, hunt them in the water and go back to the shore. If the ice is too thin, it breaks under the bears' heavy bodies and they may drown. The situation is getting worse and some researchers say the ocean may become ice-free as soon as 2050.

Without the energy from the Sun, the Earth would have no life at all. Nowadays everyone knows that the Sun is a star. Like all stars, the Sun is a great burning ball of gases. To us, it seems large and red. The other stars look white or light blue because they are much farther from us than the Sun. In the past, many people believed that the Earth was the centre of the universe. They thought that the Sun and the stars went round it. Only in 1543, a great Polish scientist published a book in which he tried to prove a different point of view. According to him, the Earth and the other planets moved round the Sun. Those people who supported the scientist were often imprisoned and even killed.

1. When did people start measuring time?

2. What units have ever been used to measure time?

3. How did people know the time before clocks were invented?

4. What is the oldest clock still working today?

5. Are there still any societies that do not measure time?

6. Can time flow faster or slower?

7. Is it possible to make time go backwards?

A Different cultures had different ways to calculate the duration of time. They expressed it in days and years, which was based on the Earth's movement around its axis and around the Sun. Months were originally connected to the cycle of the Moon. Later, people divided the day into hours, minutes, and seconds. In medieval Europe, people expressed the length of time in candles, measuring it by how fast a candle burned.

B The universal units to measure time, such as hours, minutes and seconds, suggest that time always moves at a constant speed. People, however, may feel time differently: it seems to pass quickly when we are happy or busy, and very slowly when we are bored or waiting. In science, particularly in Einstein's theory of relativity, time can actually move differently depending on speed and gravitational effects – and astronauts can experience this.

C Nowadays, our daily life is planned, and we have schedules to follow. However, people in some Aboriginal communities still live without clocks and strict time measurement. For example, there are tribes in the Amazon and on Pacific islands who organise their lives according to natural cycles – sunrise, sunset, seasons, or weather – rather than exact hours or minutes. The Hadza people, from Tanzania, also live happily without knowing what a clock is.

D Time is one of the most mysterious and important parts of human life. People have always wanted to understand it. The first attempts were made thousands of years ago in ancient civilizations such as Egypt and Mesopotamia. Around 1500 BC, Egyptians used large stone sundials. The Chinese had probably started to mark hours even earlier; they had their own sundials, which showed the time using the shadow of a stick or a carved plate.

E A clock's hands mark the passing seconds. While science-fiction films and books often use a time-travel plot, in reality it remains impossible. Most scientists agree that time only moves forward, and so far, there is no proof that it is able to change its direction. Still, scientists who study the nature of time occasionally come up with quite extravagant theories. They suggest that the universe might be more complex than we can currently understand.

F In the past, people did not have mechanical or electronic devices to measure time, and they relied on nature. They looked at the position of the Sun and the stars, used the phases of the Moon, and marked the length of shadows. Sundials were common in many parts of the world, and water clocks, or sand clocks (called hourglasses) were used for shorter periods of time. Bells in towns and monasteries also reminded people when to pray, work, or rest.

1. When and where did music first appear?
2. Who invented musical notes, and what do they mean?
3. What kinds of music exist, and which are the most popular?
4. Who are the most famous musicians and composers of all time?

5. Why do people in different countries listen to the same music?

7. Can AI write music better than people can?

6. How has technology changed the way we listen to music today?

A We still listen to music created centuries ago and enjoy it. The feelings and emotions of a medieval musician resonate with ours, though we are centuries apart. We enjoy songs in a language we do not know. It happens because music is called a universal language. It appeals to emotions. It breaks barriers and creates a sense of unity. That is why international festivals, concerts, and online platforms bring together people from all over the world.

D Though music and musical styles had been known to people since ancient times, they used to play it by ear. It is believed that musical notes, as we know them today, were first developed in the Middle Ages. Around the 11th century, the Italian monk, Guido of Arezzo, created a system to write down melodies. Each note represents a sound with a specific pitch and length. His invention made it possible to record and share music across Europe.

B In prehistoric times, people knew how to produce sounds and rhythms. The first musical instruments were made of bones, stones, or wood. Due to AI, scientists can restore some of them, and even demonstrate how they were used. Though there were no notes yet, ancient cultures in Mesopotamia, Egypt, China, and Greece had their recognisable musical styles thousands of years ago. Thus, music is one of the oldest forms of art. It was invented long before writing.

E In recent years, artificial intelligence has learned to compose melodies and even whole songs. AI can produce music quickly, and in a wide range of styles. However, most experts agree that while AI is useful, it cannot fully replace human creativity. Music written by people often carries emotions, stories, and cultural meaning that machines cannot truly understand. Still, AI may become a powerful tool to support musicians – beginners, as well as professionals.

C The invention of notes started a new era – large pieces of music were recorded and shared. The seven notes enable us to reproduce melodies created by the great masters. Classical composers such as Bach, Mozart, Tchaikovsky, and Beethoven are often considered the greatest of all time. Nowadays, AI models are being trained on their samples. The maestros' music is timeless because they created works that are full of strong emotions and energy.

F Good composers usually develop their own manner of writing, and musicians add their own emotions while performing. Due to their creativity, music is presented in countless styles and genres, which include classical, jazz, rock, pop, hip-hop, blues, reggae, country, and electronic music. Music written with AI assistants is also gaining popularity. Generally, pop and hip-hop are probably the most favoured styles today, especially by young people.

What Do Teenagers Read?

Writing essays is not my favourite pastime. I prefer solving maths problems or running my blog. You may say that writing for a blog and writing essays are just the same, but they're not!

Anyway, today we've got an assignment to write an essay about what genres teenagers prefer to read. At first, I wanted to write that teenagers do not like reading at all, and that is why they have no favourite genres. However, I then thought that the common belief that teenagers do not read may be just a stereotype, and not a fact. Indeed, a lot of senior people complain that we read much less than they did, but where is the proof? Has anyone ever done any research? Are there any figures, graphs, or diagrams proving that contemporary kids read less than teenagers sixty years ago, or how much less?

Feeling intrigued, I decided to search the web. Guess what! I was right – nobody has provided any evidence. I did not find any figures. But what I did find was a list of teenagers' favourite genres! The list was generated by AI, of course, but it provides some interesting information to consider. So, according to AI, fantasy and adventure books are at the top of the list, and I agree with that completely. I also prefer stories about magic, quests for hidden keys, and portals to any other kinds of books.

The next in rank are love stories, books about relationships, and challenges of teenage romance, and here, my personal preferences do not coincide with my AI assistant's choice. Not at all! I never read love stories, finding them too boring, and I was surprised to find out that they are so popular. On the other hand, why shouldn't they be? My sister loves them, and her friends do, too. To be precise, the girls prefer watching romantic films to reading romantic books, but, anyway, the genre is the same.

Прочитайте текст. Определите, какие из приведённых утверждений 13–19 соответствуют содержанию текста (1 – True), какие не соответствуют (2 – False) и о чём в тексте не сказано, то есть на основании текста нельзя дать ни положительного, ни отрицательного ответа (3 – Not stated).

Thrillers and crime stories are third in popularity. For some reason, this genre has always been popular with people of all ages. Just remember the queen of detective stories, Agatha Christie. I don't think there's any person who has never read any of her books – except for my sister, maybe. There are a few Agatha Christie books in our home library, but only mum can read them. Do you wonder why? Because they are in French, and mum is the only one in our family who knows French. I study Italian at school, but my level doesn't allow me to read Italian books in the original. Probably, in a couple of years, I'll be able to do it.

Science-fiction books take only fourth place in the ratings. At first, I thought AI was mistaken, but then I agreed with it. Our technological reality is breathtaking, and recent discoveries are so unbelievable and exciting, that science-fiction books cannot compete with science journals.

And you? What's your favourite reading genre?

Potatoes

The potato comes from the high and cool areas of the Andes of Peru. It began to be grown as food more than 7,000 years ago. When Europeans came to South America, they took the potato back to Europe.

In 1589, Sir Walter Raleigh, an English explorer and historian known for his expeditions to the Americas, first brought the potato to Ireland and planted the new vegetable there. In spite of the fact that the potatoes grew very well in the poor soil of Ireland, it took nearly 200 years for them to become a widely grown crop in Ireland and Great Britain. People didn't like its unusual appearance and originally bitter taste. Besides, the potato was not mentioned in the Bible and it was often associated with the devil.

According to legend, Sir Walter Raleigh presented potato plants to Queen Elizabeth I. A special royal potato dinner was made and the noble men were invited to taste the new American vegetable. But the royal cooks didn't know how to cook potatoes: they cut off and threw away the ugly-looking tubers and brought to the royal table a dish of boiled leaves (which are very poisonous). Most of the guests died after that royal dinner and potatoes were forbidden for many years.

Only two hundred years later farmers in Great Britain and Ireland began growing potatoes. Soon the rest of Europe started to follow Britain. The only country which did not accept potatoes was France. To overcome the negative attitude of the French people towards the new vegetable, King Louis XVI started to wear a potato flower as a decoration. He tried to make the people understand the benefit of potatoes as food. Even after the French king had given an order to his citizens to grow potatoes, they still were against the unfamiliar vegetable.

He tried to make the people understand the benefit of potatoes as food. Even after the French king had given an order to his citizens to grow potatoes, they still were against the unfamiliar vegetable. The farmers refused to eat potatoes because of its unusual smell and taste. Then King Louis XVI decided to trick his people. In order to show the value of the potato, the king ordered to have it planted in a royal field and put guards to watch over the field. When the local farmers saw the guards at the royal field, they decided that the thing so carefully guarded must be valuable. One day, the guards were allowed to go off duty. The local farmers went into the field, dug out some potatoes and planted them in their fields. The king's plan was a success. From this small start, the habit of growing and eating potatoes spread all over the country.

As Europeans began to grow potatoes, they realized the advantages of the new vegetable. The potato harvest was enough to feed their own families and to sell some to the citizens of towns and cities. The new food stimulated the development of cities and industries. Besides, the health of the people improved as they included potatoes in their diets. Now the potato is grown and enjoyed everywhere.

17 French farmers stole some potatoes from the King's field.

Text A. Dear students, we are very glad that you've chosen our Summer Language School and we'll do our best to make your time here pleasant and useful. Apart from the English classes, which are held every day of the week, including Saturdays and Sundays, you can join our Spanish Club. The Spanish Club welcomes you every Friday from 6 till 9pm. Anyone can take part in these weekly sessions. Our teachers will arrange the activities in groups of different levels.

Text B. Hi, Mum. I can't wait to tell you the news. Just listen. Your daughter, Lucy Brown, has won the Space Research Contest for schoolchildren and has been awarded first prize, which is a telescope. Now we will all be able to enjoy the night sky from home. It's much more interesting than going to the planetarium. The telescope is not large. In fact, it's an amateur version. I saw the same one on a TV show on the educational channel. See you at home. We're celebrating today, aren't we?

Text C.

A: Do you like our town, Tim?

T: Yes, Anne, it's nice and quiet. Have you always lived here?

A: Yes, I have hardly ever left it. It's nice, you are right. Especially the orchard garden next to the river. I go there when I feel sad or happy.

T: Sounds like you really like it.

A: Yes, it's a special place for me.

T: Look, could you show me a bit of your town? Sam, I'd like to see the old tower in the centre.

A: It's a museum now, not really interesting.

T: Anyway, and the main pedestrian street with all its craft shops. I'd like to buy some souvenirs there. And that wonderful orchard garden of yours, of course.

Text D.

S: Hi Lucy, I didn't know you were back from holiday.

L: Oh Sam, we returned yesterday. Our flight was delayed by five hours. Can you imagine that?

S: Yes, I can. Delays and crowds in the airport are the reasons why we prefer cars to planes. We are going to the seaside on Friday. By car, of course.

L: Right. The car is convenient in many ways.

S: We also need to take lots of luggage, including diving masks, flippers, and my surfboard. The car will hold all of that.

L: Looks like it's going to be great holiday. Send me photos, will you? Now I need to be off for the train station. My granny's arriving on the six o'clock train.

Text A. Dear visitors of the park, right now we are starting the awarding ceremony. Our winners, the three best roller skaters, will get their prizes. We also have to inform you that the light show, which had been planned for this evening, is cancelled for technical reasons. As a sort of compensation, tonight, we offer you another exciting show. The best Latino dancers will be competing on our summer stage tonight. A storm of energetic music and colorful costumes. Don't miss it.

Text B.

Hi, Sarah. It's Samantha. I've got a problem with my computer. In fact, it's not the computer. I just can't get into my school account. Anyway, I remember that we've got some assignments due tomorrow in science. But I don't remember what exactly we have to do. Could you text the task to me, please? It's really urgent because I need to complete my homework by 6 p.M. As I don't want to miss a pizza in the best pizzeria of the city. My parents promised to take me there tonight.

Text C.

T: Here you are at last, Greg. I've been worried.

G: Sorry, Ms.Key. It was my first afternoon off, and I wanted to see the city.

T: My fault. I haven't shown you anything yet. Anyway, next Sunday, we'll go to the Robot Exhibition at the Exhibition Center.

G: Thanks.

T: And what did you see today?

G: First, I headed for the Entertainment Park, but found myself at an ice cream funfair.

T: Which is a great place if you love ice cream. But I don't.

G: So I turned back and got to the entertainment park at last. And wow, I'd never had so much fun before. The place is fantastic, especially the roller coasters.

Text D.

N: Hi, Emma.

E: Hi, Neil. I'm calling to ask you a favour. All my family are going to the seaside.

N: Lucky you. Have a nice holiday.

E: Thanks, but since everyone's leaving, there's no one at home to take care of my pet, and we can't take him with us.

N: Sorry, Emma, I can't help you there. Our rule is neither cats nor dogs in our house. They make me cough and sneeze, which can lead to some dangerous syndromes.

E: Oh, I'm not talking about cats or dogs. It's just a little bird, a parrot.

N: That makes things different. I'm not allergic to birds, and I don't mind having your bird as a guest in our house. It'll be fun.

E: I'm not allergic to birds, and I don't mind having your bird as a guest in our house. It'll be fun.

Speaker A, I'm not athletic at all, though I used to go swimming. Now I just do it for fun and for exercise, and it seems boring to me as a spectator. However, if there's a football match on, here I am in front of the screen, afraid to miss a minute of it. I don't play it, but that doesn't really matter. I do my best not to miss a single match. Quite often, my friends and I go to the stadium to support Liverpool, my all-time favorite team. We always wear our red scarves and sing the team songs.

Speaker B. Swimming has been something that I have done all my life. And also a bit of water polo and diving. All these are really good sports. However, now I'd like to do something more exciting that I haven't done before. And surfing is at the top of my list. It's quite challenging, I know. I'll need to learn a lot, and it's not going to be easy, like anything you do for the first time.

But I'm ready to have a go. If you want to do something very much, I think you should try it.

Speaker C. I've been playing football and volleyball since high school. I used to be very shy and reserved, but these games helped greatly improve my social skills. The thing is that when playing together, you have to interact and get along with other members of the group. Everybody wants to win. So all members have to cooperate with one another to achieve the common goal of winning. That is something that you cannot learn from an individual sport.

Speaker D. I first tried diving only a year ago, but now I'm really into it. It's amazing to experience the underwater world so different from ours and truly wonderful. Diving looks simple. However, it's not as easy and safe as it looks. The sudden loss of oxygen is probably the biggest threat. It's also dangerous to rise quickly to the surface or just dive in an unfamiliar place. However, with proper precautions, diving can open up a whole new world far from the stresses of daily life.

Speaker E. I reckon all athletes are real-life superheroes. We look at these super people and admire the types of things they can do with their bodies that ordinary people can't. They look great.

They can do amazing things. And you want to look somewhat the same and follow their example. Many athletes show incredible determination in their everyday lives.

This serves as an inspiration to young people. Or at least they can motivate you to finally join a gym and never miss workouts.

Speaker A. Family is not large, but we spend lots of time together. Unlike most families, we don't only get together in the evening and at weekends, but we see each other a lot during the daytime in our familybakery.It's a family business. It was set up by my grandfather and now my parents run it. My granddad is still in charge of all the accountingmatters.I help in the bakery shop and my brother delivers fresh bread and buns to our regular customers.

Speaker B. I have three siblings, which makes four kids in the family, all in all. That means plenty of housework, especially for mom.She usually does most of the shopping and we try to help her with cleaning, at least with keeping our rooms clean. As the oldest sister, I also try to look after the younger ones. Dad always washes the dishes and often helps mom with cooking, which is his hobby, by the way.Doing things together really helps us have more time for each other.

Speaker C. I have ten siblings. Dozens of cousins, nieces, nephews, in-laws, you name it.We now all live in different places and even countries. However, we have no problem keeping in touch. We regularly call each other andtext.Most of us are on Facebook and can keep up with life events. I even send cards and letters in the old fashioned way. We also try to get together as often as possible.Usually for big family events where the majority of us will show up.

Speaker D. My sister and I are twins and people think we should be inseparable because they believe we are very much alike. Well, partially that's true.We spend a lot of time together. We do look very much alike, but we are very different in character. She is very calm and relaxed while I am bubbly and very emotional.She is very ladylike and wears nice dresses. And my all-time favorites are jeans and sneakers. Despite this, we get along really well and never quarrel.

Speaker E. I enjoy it greatly when our family gets together. It doesn't happen very often, unfortunately, because we live in different cities and everyone is always so busy. But there is a day when we put off all our other plans and come to our grandparents house for a special party.We all look forward to this day. We exchange news, discuss our plans, chat and enjoy the most delicious cake our grandmother makes for this day.It's huge and everyone takes a piece of it.
